CRANERY CAVES ON CHILDREN

Have Narrow Escape From Death

Monday evening about 8 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Grotte had a party to meet their nine year old son and his baby brother, Robert. They went to play in an old granary a short distance from the house. They had not played long until Robert fell from the roof. His weight caused one of the walls, completely covering the baby. Mrs. G. Olsen was watering his eyes in the lot at the time and ran to get as soon as the wall fell. The baby's twelve years old sister, who was working in the house ran to the scene to help Mr. Olsen uncover the baby. While she was working another wall fell pinning her in the debris. WILL OF THE MARRIED MAN

Explains Why In His Opinion Separate Prayer Meetings Are Advisable.

Kansas City preacher is expounding with a separate prayer meeting for men and women, and the excitement will be watched with interest. He argues that the men are not to come out and ask the Lord what they want, their wives being present to hear; that they will be free if only men are present. "There is something in that," writes a man to the Globe. "I want the Lord to change my wife's disposition. She is always watching me. If I were such a prayer to the throne as she is, with her kneeling beside me to hear, there would be a when I got home that would be all the mottoes of the walls. I also like to ask for a lot of what I want no women to hear. I have noticed that if a man is praying meeting steps in his way, and asks for anything more, the women talk about his world next day. I have a notion that a lot of us men want things that we don't want the women to know."—Alchison Globe.

How He Was to Be Captured

When you go in to capture that man, said the chief to his officers, are to do so with laughter and for I have been told that we take him seriously."

Pistols and Politeness

Each of the politeness of the old southern gentlemen came, and comes, from the same handiness with the pocket pistol. The same politeness existed in England in the Puritan reformation. Now the information regarded as a man's invention of the devil, and which strongly affected New England had little effect on the south. It was less affected in mannerisms by the reformation than France, far less than England. It has been a good thing for the south and France if each had got more of the Cavalier or Gaulois in the sober discipline of life.—York Press.

The devoted boy who remembered his Creator in the days of his youth, ere the evil days came, or the years drew nigh when he should say I have no pleasure in them, has finished his course and reached the heavenly goal while yet an infant in the race of life.

BENJAMIN NOTES

Young Lady Called Home

Funeral services were held in the Benjamin meeting house Saturday afternoon over the remains of Carrie Stewart who died at her sister's home in Benjamin last Thursday afternoon, at the age of eighteen years. Miss Stewart had been suffering from consumption for about a year but was only confined to her bed about two weeks.

The meeting house was crowded to its fullest capacity with friends and relatives who had come to pay their last respects to the departed. The room was beautifully decorated in white and profuse and tasteful arrangements of flowers were much in evidence.

Bishop John Johnson presided over the services. The opening prayer was offered by Alpheus Bingham. The choir sang "Though Deepening Trials Through Your Way."

The speakers were Charles Hawkins, B. M. Davis and Joseph Hand, all of whom bore a faithful testimony to the beautiful life and character of the deceased. They dwelt upon her earnest workings in the church and her efforts to do good upon the earth. They spoke of how her friends and relatives would miss her and spoke words of comfort and consolation to her parents and relatives.

Miss Pearl Ludlow sang very beautifully "O Grave Where is Thy Victory" assisted by the choir in the chorus.

Bishop Lorenzo Argyle of Lake Shore offered the benediction. In the death of Miss Stewart all who knew her keenly realized their loss. She was a true friend and her devotion to those she loved would make a bright chapter in any life.

While she is gone from the scenes, the conflicts, the sorrows and pleasures of life she will still live in the hearts of those who knew her best.

Her future was full of promise and we dare not ask why she was taken from us in her prime, unless, as flowers are picked before the frost finds them, that we may not witness their decay.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stewart and family wish to thank all those who so kindly assisted them during their sad bereavement.

Blessed Are They That Want Little. Those who want fewest things are nearest to the gods.—Diogenes

LET US REJOICE!

Good Work of Police Department

Brings Promise of Better Times

When the liquor dealers of Spanish Fork learned recently that the City officers had enough cases against each of them to cause them no end of trouble, they decided to stop violating the City Ordinance and quit selling liquor.

Now is the best time of all for loyal Spanish Forkers to rejoice. The last five months have been one continual round of bitter rivalry, hard words and opposition. It seems that now, at last, peace is at hand and the city can go on without opposition, making improvements and have the co-operation of every taxpayer here.

Last fall's political campaign was so closely contested that the opposition to the city ordinance which has been going on, was almost inevitable. There may still be some opposition but it is our duty as citizens to help stamp it out.

Liquor as a beverage is something humanity can get along very well without. No sane person can help seeing the harmful effect of it, and as the progression of the world goes on, an educational enlightenment takes the place of darkness, the need of legislation against the evil is more and more apparent.

The time is soon at hand when state wide prohibition will be a matter of course and the best thing possible to do is to prepare ourselves for it.
